

Administration unveils new energy program

July 11 2005

Bush administration officials Monday announced a new program to reduce household energy costs by 10 percent during the next decade.

The Partnership for Home Energy Efficiency will reportedly provide energy saving solutions for households, while also supporting research and implementation of new energy efficiency technologies.

The program will be coordinated by the Department of Energy, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the Environmental Protection Agency.

Copyright 2005 by United Press International

Citation: Administration unveils new energy program (2005, July 11) retrieved 25 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2005-07-administration-unveils-energy.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--