

France Telecom pushes for copper line DSL

September 13 2005

France Telecom said Tuesday high-definition television can be received over copper lines.

The French telecommunications giant said increased bandwidth capabilities and compressions techniques have allowed high-speed data transmission using standard telephone cables.

In a news release, the company said that it "has worked with international DSL standardization bodies from the outset, and has evaluated the various technologies in its labs."

Copyright 2005 by United Press International

Citation: France Telecom pushes for copper line DSL (2005, September 13) retrieved 25 March 2023 from <https://phys.org/news/2005-09-france-telecom-copper-line-dsl.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--