

Ericsson dominates third-generation phones

October 21 2005

Ericsson said Friday that it has about 30 percent of the global market share in third-generation mobile-phone handsets.

The Swedish mobile group said in a news release that since May 2004, the company has launched 23 third-generation handset models worldwide, and over 10 million units have been shipped, making it the single-biggest third-generation cell-phone manufacturer in the world.
