

Facebook users can help Chase find small charities

November 18 2009

(AP) -- JPMorgan Chase is letting Facebook users help decide how to give away $5 million.

The idea is to get small, local charities on Chase's radar.

The "Chase Community Giving" will let Facebook users choose from more than half a million charities that have an operating budget of less than $10 million apiece. The 100 charities getting the most votes will each receive $25,000 from Chase.

In the program's second round, one of the 100 will get a grant of $1 million, determined by a Facebook vote that begins Jan. 15.

JPMorgan Chase & Co. donates about $100 million a year to non-profit organizations, mostly higher-profile, larger ones such as the American Museum of Natural History in New York. The $5 million is on top of that.

©2009 The Associated Press. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

Citation: Facebook users can help Chase find small charities (2009, November 18) retrieved 13 March 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2009-11-facebook-users-small-charities.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.