

'Modern Warfare' mastermind introduces 'Titanfall'

June 13 2013, by Derrik J. Lang

A replica of a robot from the video game Titanfall stands in the lobby area as show attendees wait in line to enter the Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles, Wednesday, June 12, 2013. (AP Photo/Jae C. Hong)

Vince Zampella is back at E3.

After spending the past three years engaged in both legal battles and work on a new game, the "Call of Duty: Modern Warfare" co-creator has returned to the Electronic Entertainment Expo to debut "Titanfall."

The game is the first title from Respawn Entertainment. He launched the studio in 2010 with partner Jason West after they were fired by Activision-Blizzard Inc.

"Titanfall" is a shoot-'em-up multiplayer game where players portray futuristic soldiers who can run up walls and man giant robots dubbed titans.

Ryan Hakik sports a Mohawk hairdo with the title of the video game "Titanfall" printed on it during the Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles, Wednesday, June 12, 2013. (AP Photo/Jae C. Hong)

The game is set for release next year for Microsoft's next-generation Xbox One console, as well as the current-gen Xbox 360 and PC.

Zampella says Xbox One's cloud computing capabilities will make for stronger artificial intelligence in the game.

© 2013 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: 'Modern Warfare' mastermind introduces 'Titanfall' (2013, June 13) retrieved 26 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2013-06-modern-warfare-mastermind-titanfall.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.