

Syrian hackers claim Obama Facebook, Twitter accounts

October 28 2013

A person poses with a cell phone in front of a computer screen to check Barack Obama's tweet on November 7, 2012 in Paris after his re-election as US president

Hackers from a group calling itself the Syrian Electronic Army claimed Monday they had taken control of US President Barack Obama's Twitter and Facebook accounts.

The group, which backs Syria's government and which has previously hacked accounts of The New York Times, Agence France-Presse and other media organizations, published screen shots which it said backed its claims.

"Thanks to our operation, Twitter now blocks Obama's dangerous propaganda links," said a tweet from the Syrian group.

Both accounts appeared to be functioning normally some time after the claim. The White House did not immediately respond to an AFP query on the claim.

A Twitter spokesman said in a tweet that "The @BarackObama Twitter account was not compromised; their link shortener was."

The Syrian group also indicated it took over a Gmail account from Obama's campaign and a page from that website.

"We accessed many Obama campaign emails accounts to assess his terrorism capabilities. They are quite high," the group tweeted.

An official at the political offshoot of the Obama campaign called "Organizing For Action" acknowledged that the link shortener was hacked but that the Twitter handle itself was not compromised.

The SEA has made itself known in recent months, hacking the Twitter account of The Associated Press to put out a false tweet saying Obama had been hurt in two explosions at the White House.

SEA has also targeted the Twitter account of the AFP photo service, as well as social media at the BBC, Al-Jazeera and the Financial Times and Guardian newspapers.

The group alleges bias in the coverage of most media outlets over the unrest in Syria.

© 2013 AFP

Citation: Syrian hackers claim Obama Facebook, Twitter accounts (2013, October 28) retrieved 30 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2013-10-syrian-hackers-obama-facebook-twitter.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.