

Gov't: 1 in 14 fell prey to identity theft in 2012

December 12 2013

The government says 1 in 14 Americans fell prey to identity theft last year.

It's a crime that takes a heavy emotional toll on many of its victims.

A national household survey of 70,000 people shows identity theft resulted in nearly $25 billion in losses last year.

For many victims, the size of the loss was eclipsed by concerns that someone had stolen their identity and that it might take weeks or months to repair the damage.

Among victims who spent six months or more resolving financial and credit problems stemming from identity theft, 47 percent experienced severe emotional distress.

© 2013 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Gov't: 1 in 14 fell prey to identity theft in 2012 (2013, December 12) retrieved 23 May 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2013-12-govt-fell-prey-identity-theft.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--