

Alibaba chairman wants to bring US movies to China

October 28 2014, by Brandon Bailey

---

The head of China's leading Internet conglomerate wants to bring American movies to China, along with other U.S. products.

Jack Ma, executive chairman of Alibaba Group, the Chinese e-commerce giant that just held a record stock debut on Wall Street, is visiting Hollywood film studios this week. He told a tech industry conference Monday night that he is "looking for partners" because "China will be the largest movie market in the world" in the next 10 or 15 years.

Alibaba operates several Internet services, including retail sites, online payments and streaming video. In response to a question, Ma also said he would be interested in teaming with Apple to bring its Apple Pay digital payments service to China.

© 2014 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Alibaba chairman wants to bring US movies to China (2014, October 28) retrieved 24 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2014-10-alibaba-chairman-movies-china.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--