

Google teams up with European media to boost online journalism

April 28 2015

Google will inject $160 million into the project to promote new ideas in digital journalism

Google will on Tuesday launch a 150 million euro programme to support innovative online journalism in partnership with eight European publications.

In a statement, the Internet giant said the Digital News Initiative would "support quality journalism (through) technology and innovation."

The initiative brings together Les Echos in France, Germany's FAZ, the Financial Times, The Guardian, NRC Media in The Netherlands, El Pais in Spain, La Stampa in Italy and Die Zeit in Germany as well as European media organisations.

The partners will focus on product development, supporting innovation as well as training and research.

They will also set up a working group to "increase revenue, traffic and audience engagement", said the statement.

Google will inject $160 million into the project to promote new ideas in digital journalism.

© 2015 AFP

Citation: Google teams up with European media to boost online journalism (2015, April 28) retrieved 19 April 2024 from
<https://phys.org/news/2015-04-google-teams-european-media-boost.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.