

Video: Handheld diagnostics

September 2 2015

Sam Sia, associate professor of Biomedical Engineering, and his team developed a smartphone dongle to bring diagnostic testing to remote areas where health care access is limited and funds are low.

The device identifies markers of infectious and chronic diseases, hormonal imbalances and vitamin deficiencies with results available in as little as 15 minutes.

Provided by Columbia University

Citation: Video: Handheld diagnostics (2015, September 2) retrieved 3 May 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2015-09-video-handheld-diagnostics.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--