

E3 interrupted after attendee injured on escalator

June 16 2016, by Derrik J. Lang

Gamers experience the Samsung Galaxy VR at the Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles on Wednesday, June 15, 2016. (AP Photo/Nick Ut)

The revelry at the Electronic Entertainment Expo temporarily paused Wednesday afternoon after an unidentified man suffered a seizure and fell down an escalator at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

The entrance leading down to the venue's South Hall lobby was closed off as emergency personnel assisted the wounded E3 attendee.

The man suffered head trauma and was initially unconscious and bleeding at the base of the elevator as frantic convention goers sought help from nearby security personnel.

The man was revived then transferred to an ambulance. The escalators remained closed as a cleaning crew later worked to clean up the scene.

A spokesman for the Electronic Entertainment Association, which organizes E3, said the man was a staff member and is recovering after his injuries.

The annual gathering of the video game industry draws over 50,000 game developers, reporters and other industry insiders to the Los Angeles Convention Center for previews of upcoming software and hardware.

A display for "Watch Dogs 2," an upcoming open world action-adventure third-person shooter video game developed by Ubisoft, is seen at the Electronic Entertainment Expo in Los Angeles on Wednesday, June 15, 2016. (AP Photo/Nick Ut) © 2016 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: E3 interrupted after attendee injured on escalator (2016, June 16) retrieved 11 May 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2016-06-e3-attendee-escalator.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.