

Explorers to explain mission to Andrea Doria shipwreck

June 13 2016

Undersea explorers who spent several days studying the wreck of the Andrea Doria off Nantucket are planning to share their findings.

The crew from Washington-state based OceanGate has scheduled a news conference in Boston for Monday morning.

Using a five-man submersible, the crew spent last week exploring the Italian ocean liner that went down in 1956 after it collided with another ship. Fifty-one people died in total, 46 of them on the Andrea Doria.

The ship has been resting on the ocean floor about 240 feet down and about 50 miles south of Nantucket ever since.

Sixteen divers have died exploring the wreck over the years.

© 2016 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Explorers to explain mission to Andrea Doria shipwreck (2016, June 13) retrieved 1 May 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2016-06-explorers-mission-andrea-doria-shipwreck.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--