

GM takes stake in China car-sharing startup

October 12 2016

---

US automaker General Motors is taking a stake in the Chinese car-sharing startup Yi Wei Xing, expanding the company's global footprint in alternative and mobile-oriented transport.

Yi Wei Xing's smartphone app Feezu works with car-rental companies to let customers hire cars for short periods.

"Yi Wei Xing has solid technologies and innovations that will help us explore more efficient and personalized mobility solutions for consumers in China," Julia Steyn, GM vice president for urban mobility, said in a statement released Tuesday.

The statement did not disclose the amount of GM's equity investment in Yi Wei Xing.

In January GM announced a $500 million investment in the ride-hailing service Lyft as the company joins the race to develop self-driving cars.

© 2016 AFP

Citation: GM takes stake in China car-sharing startup (2016, October 12) retrieved 26 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2016-10-gm-stake-china-car-sharing-startup.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--