

Chinese man pleads guilty in global software piracy case

September 20 2017

---

A Chinese businessman has pleaded guilty to his role in an international, multimillion dollar software piracy case.

Federal prosecutors say 37-year-old Wen Tao Liu, also known as Orland Liu, pleaded guilty Tuesday in federal court in Kansas City to conspiracy and trafficking in counterfeit labels. Liu, a citizen of China, was arrested in 2016 in Dallas while trying to return to his country.

He is the eighth person to plead guilty in the scheme. Investigators say those involved sold more than $100 million worth of counterfeit, unauthorized software products online to thousands of customers.

The investigation began in Kansas City in 2013 when investigators learned that another man, Casey Lee Ross, bought and redistributed tens of thousands of unauthorized Microsoft product key codes and counterfeit product key cards.

© 2017 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Chinese man pleads guilty in global software piracy case (2017, September 20) retrieved 28 April 2024 from
<https://phys.org/news/2017-09-chinese-guilty-global-software-piracy.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.
--