

Facebook taps advisers for audits on bias and civil rights

May 2 2018, by Mae Anderson

In this Jan. 13, 2015, file photo, Laura Murphy, director, ACLU Legislative Office, speaks at the President's Task Force on 21 Century Policing at the Newseum in Washington. Facebook has enlisted two outside advisers to examine how it treats underrepresented communities and whether it has a liberal bias. Civil rights leader Laura Murphy will examine civil rights issues, along with law firm Relman, Dane & Colfax. Former Sen. Jon Kyl, an Arizona Republican, will examine concerns about a liberal bias on Facebook. (AP Photo/Cliff Owen, File)

Facebook has enlisted two outside advisers to examine how it treats underrepresented communities and whether it has a liberal bias.

Civil rights leader Laura Murphy will examine civil rights issues, along with law firm Relman, Dane & Colfax. Former Sen. Jon Kyl, an Arizona Republican, will examine concerns about a liberal bias on Facebook.

The moves come as Facebook deals with a privacy scandal related to access of tens of millions of users' data by a consulting firm affiliated with President Donald Trump. CEO Mark Zuckerberg testified before Congress on the issue last month. Facebook also has faced criticisms over a deluge of fake news and Russian election interference.

The audits were reported earlier by Axios. Facebook says the feedback will help Facebook improve and serve users more effectively.

In this Dec. 30, 2012, file photo, Senate Minority Whip Jon Kyl, R-Ariz., walks between the Senate chamber and the office of Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., in Washington. Facebook has enlisted two outside advisers to examine how it treats underrepresented communities and whether it has a liberal bias. Former Sen. Jon Kyl, an Arizona Republican, will examine concerns about a liberal bias on Facebook. Civil rights leader Laura Murphy will examine civil rights issues, along with law firm Relman, Dane & Colfax. (AP Photo/J. Scott Applewhite, File)

© 2018 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Facebook taps advisers for audits on bias and civil rights (2018, May 2) retrieved 25 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2018-05-facebook-bias-civil-rights.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.