

Chicken strips dog treats recalled due to salmonella danger

July 14 2022

Dog treats are being voluntarily recalled due to possible salmonella contamination.

The North Carolina Department of Agriculture & Consumer Services reported July 6 that some Stormberg Foods LLC dog treats were contaminated with salmonella, which triggered the recall, according to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The recalled products are Beg & Barker Chicken Breast Strips Dog Treat, Billo's Best Friend Chicken Breast Strips Dog Treat and Green Coast Pets Chicken Crisps Dog Treat.

Salmonella in these products can infect pets and people who handle them, especially if they have not washed their hands after touching the products or surfaces exposed to them, the company said.

People should watch out for symptoms of salmonella infection, including nausea, vomiting, diarrhea or bloody diarrhea, abdominal cramping and fever.

In rare cases, salmonella can cause more serious problems, including heart infections, endocarditis, arthritis, muscle pain, eye irritation and urinary tract symptoms. People with these signs should contact their doctor.

Pets infected with salmonella may be lethargic, have diarrhea or bloody diarrhea, fever and vomiting. Some will have decreased appetite, fever and abdominal pain.

Pets that have symptoms should be seen by a veterinarian, the company advised in a news release.

Healthy pets can carry the germ and not have symptoms but can infect other animals or people.

So far no illnesses have been reported, the company said.

Products affected all have expiration dates of June 6 to 23, 2023. The products are:

- Beg & Barker Chicken Breast Strips 1 oz., UPC code 8 50025 54628 7, all batch numbers
- Beg & Barker Chicken Breast Strips 4 oz., UPC code 8 50025 54611 9, all batch numbers
