

Plastics causing multi-organ damage in seabirds

October 12 2022

© Alex Bond

Credit: Alex Bond

New research shows that the presence of plastics in seabirds can induce multiple organ and tissue damage affecting the entire body in a multitude of ways, not just limited to the stomach as previously assumed.

A team of scientists, including the Natural History Museum's Dr. Alex Bond and Dr. Jennifer Lavers, studied Flesh-footed Shearwaters from Australia's Lord Howe Island to look at the relationship between macroplastic (>5 mm) and microplastic (

Citation: Plastics causing multi-organ damage in seabirds (2022, October 12) retrieved 23 April 2024 from <https://phys.org/news/2022-10-plastics-multi-organ-seabirds.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.