

Privacy groups ask FTC to investigate Facebook

29 September 2011

(AP) -- Nine privacy groups have sent a joint letter to the Federal Trade Commission saying it should investigate the ways Facebook collects data about users' online activity after recent changes to its site.

The Electronic Privacy Information Center, the American Civil Liberties Union and other groups sent the letter to the FTC Wednesday.

The groups say changes Facebook made last week give it far greater ability to disclose users' personal information to businesses than it used to have.

Facebook users can now consent just once and have applications continuously share on Facebook the music they are listening to or the articles they are reading.

Facebook says that change gives users control over what apps they use and what information is shared.

The letter does not constitute a formal complaint.

©2011 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.
This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.

APA citation: Privacy groups ask FTC to investigate Facebook (2011, September 29) retrieved 16 October 2019 from <https://phys.org/news/2011-09-privacy-groups-ftc-facebook.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.