

Toyota to unveil new hybrid model at motor show

15 November 2011

electric motor.

(c) 2011 AFP

Toyota Motor said Tuesday it would unveil the new compact hybrid car "Aqua" at the upcoming Tokyo Motor Show, boasting improved fuel efficiency amid intensifying competition to build more eco-friendly vehicles.

Toyota Motor said Tuesday it would unveil a new compact hybrid car at the upcoming Tokyo Motor Show, boasting improved fuel efficiency amid intensifying competition to build more eco-friendly vehicles.

The "Aqua", to be sold under the name "Prius C" outside Japan, offers fuel efficiency of approximately 35 kilometres (22 miles) per litre, and will go on display at the motor show to be held between November 30 and December 11.

Its fuel economy exceeds that of Toyota's existing Prius model at 32.6 kilometres per litre, making it one of the world's most fuel efficient cars.

The Japanese auto giant plans to launch the five-seater model in late December in Japan, before a gradual global roll-out

The compact and lightweight hybrid system combines a 1.5-litre engine with a high-output

APA citation: Toyota to unveil new hybrid model at motor show (2011, November 15) retrieved 20 October 2019 from <https://phys.org/news/2011-11-toyota-unveil-hybrid-motor.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.