

Schwarzenegger calls for more effort to fight climate change

February 8 2015

Former California governor and Hollywood star Arnold Schwarzenegger delivers a speech at the sideline of the 51. Security Conference in Munich, Germany, Sunday, Feb. 8, 2015. Arnold Schwarzenegger is calling more to be done to combat climate change, calling it "the issue of our time." Speaking Sunday to a small group at the Munich security conference introducing a new policy paper "The Future of Energy," Schwarzenegger said his experience in California was that the adoption of green energy creates jobs, while leading to energy independence. (AP Photo/Matthias Schrader)

(AP)—Former California governor and Hollywood star Arnold Schwarzenegger is calling for more to be done to combat climate change, saying it is "the issue of our time."

Speaking Sunday to a small group at the Munich security conference, where he introduced a new policy paper "The Future of Energy," Schwarzenegger said his experience in California was that the adoption of green energy creates jobs and leads to energy independence.

He applauded formal efforts to come to new agreements to reduce carbon emissions and fight global warming, but says there is no need for governments to wait for summits.

He says "we should be fighting climate change right now."

Schwarzenegger says the issue shouldn't be politicized and people should work together for solutions.

He says "we all breathe the same air."

© 2015 The Associated Press. All rights reserved.

Citation: Schwarzenegger calls for more effort to fight climate change (2015, February 8) retrieved 19 September 2024 from

<https://phys.org/news/2015-02-schwarzenegger-effort-climate.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.