

Microsoft sues Japan's Kyocera for patent infringement

7 March 2015

US-based Microsoft is suing high-tech manufacturer Kyocera for patent infringement over technology used in the Japanese company's cellular phones

US-based Microsoft is suing high-tech manufacturer Kyocera for patent infringement over technology used in the Japanese company's cellular phones.

Microsoft claims Kyocera's Android-based Duraforce, Hydro and Brigadier smartphones use geolocation and SMS technology protected by Microsoft patents, according to the suit filed in the US state of Washington on Friday.

Microsoft entered into the mobile phone sector when it agreed to buy Nokia's handset division in 2013.

© 2015 AFP

APA citation: Microsoft sues Japan's Kyocera for patent infringement (2015, March 7) retrieved 19 September 2020 from <https://phys.org/news/2015-03-microsoft-sues-japan-kyocera-patent.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.