

Elon Musk cracks a lewd joke at Jeff Bezos' new 'Blue Moon' lander

10 May 2019, by Brett Molina, Usa Today

Credit: CC0 Public Domain

stay," Bezos said during the unveiling of the moon lander Thursday.

Last year, Musk said a Japanese billionaire will become the first private passenger to fly around the moon, possibly in 2023.

Meanwhile, NASA has its own plans to bring astronauts back to the moon. Last month, the Trump administration said the space agency would likely bring humans back to the moon within five years.

(c)2019 USA Today

Distributed by Tribune Content Agency, LLC.

The moon lander introduced Thursday by Blue Origin, the aerospace company run by Amazon CEO Jeff Bezos, has caught the attention of Elon Musk.

The head of both Tesla and his own aerospace company, SpaceX, delivered a subtle jab at "Blue Moon," the name of the lander which could take astronauts to the moon by 2024.

Musk made a lewd joke about the name on Twitter, sharing an image of the lander with the word "Moon" erased and replaced with the word "Balls."

"Oh stop teasing, Jeff," wrote Musk, adding a winking face emoji at the end.

Both Bezos and Musk, with their respective companies, are pushing to return astronauts to the moon. Bezos has suggested establishing a manufacturing base on the moon because of its lower gravity compared to Earth.

"It's time to go back to the moon, and this time to

APA citation: Elon Musk cracks a lewd joke at Jeff Bezos' new 'Blue Moon' lander (2019, May 10)
retrieved 12 November 2019 from <https://phys.org/news/2019-05-elon-musk-lewd-jeff-bezos.html>

This document is subject to copyright. Apart from any fair dealing for the purpose of private study or research, no part may be reproduced without the written permission. The content is provided for information purposes only.